Synopsis of Ratatouille Movie

Ratatouille

Ratatouille is a movie from France. It was directed by Brad Bird and produced by Pixar and released by Walt Disney Pictures in 2007. The title refers to the French dish called ratatouille which is served as the movie's favorite menu. The plot follows a rat named Remy, as the main character here, who has a dream of becoming a chef and tries his best to achieve his goals to be a chef and to show people that Gusteau is correct, anyone can cook. Remy is the son of the rat colony's leader. And his father's name is Django. Django always doubts Remy and always told Remy to stop thinking and believe that a rat could cook. He also warns her son to stay away from humans. Until trouble has come. Remy and the colony separated. Aside from that, he can visit Paris and meet Linguini. Linguini is Gesteu's son who works as a garbage boy at that time. And when he accidentally messing up the soup, Remy tries to help the soup with his strategic seasoning. After that, the waiter announces that the customers love that soup. The soup that has been saved with Remy's strategic seasonings. Since that time, Linguini directly thinks that he can work together as a team. So, he adopts Remy and makes a deal to work as a team. Linguini and Remy became a friend and then helped Linguini learn to cook. After a few tries, they find out that Remy can manipulate Linguini like a puppet by pulling on the boy's hair at strategic moments. Deciding that this is their best method, Linguini and Remy spend the next few days practicing cooking in their spare time.

Since then, together, they astounded Paris with their brilliance. Especially with their main dish, called ratatouille.
