When you try your best, but you don't succeed

When you get what you want, but not what you need

When you feel so tired, but you can't sleep

Stuck in reverse

And the tears come streaming down your face

When you lose something you can't replace

When you love someone, but it goes to waste

Could it be worse?

Lights will guide you home

And ignite your bones

And I will try to fix you

And high up above, or down below

When you're too in love to let it go

But if you never try, you'll never know

Just what you're worth

Lights will guide you home
And ignite your bones
And I will try to fix you

APPENDIX 8. The Script of the Podcast

Source: Easy Stories In English on Spotify, title “You Can’t Please Everyone” minute 2:49 – 5:40

So first, what does it mean to “please” someone?

When you want to make someone happy, you try to please them. Usually, this means you are making a big effort and hope the person really likes something. For example, a child who has very strict parents might work hard at school to please them. They want to be good at school so that their parents are happy. We can also say something looks or tastes pleasing. For example, a new piece of clothing could please the eye, it could look very nice and make you happy.

Unfortunately, you can’t make everyone happy and that’s why we have this phrase: “You can’t please everyone”.

For example, when you are at school, maybe you want to be part of the cool kids, you want to be one of the popular group at school, but these kids all skip classes and don’t do their classes and say bad words. But also, you want to please your parents and get good grades at school, so you try to do both at once. But the cool kids don’t like you because you do your homework, and because you’re trying to be cool, you don’t do that well, you don’t get good grades. That’s a good example of how you can’t please everyone.

But some people do try to please everyone, and those people are people pleasers. People pleasers can be very fun because, obviously, they like to make everyone happy, but they can’t please everyone.

I used to be a bit of a people pleaser. I would have very different friends because I tried to be friends with everyone, and I changed myself, I changed my personality, to be friends with certain people.

This can lead to very strange situations when different groups of your friends meet and you realise they don't like each other, they have very different personalities, and you are the only thing between them. Apart from you, they have nothing in common, they have nothing the same. This has happened to me a few times.

Anyway, don't be a people pleaser! Just be yourself. Oh! That's such a cliché, isn't it? It's a message you hear all the time in TV shows and films, but it's kind of true.

APPENDIX 9. Documentations
