Day of Infamy Speech Transcript

Franklin D. Roosevelt's Address to Congress December 8, 1941

Mr. Vice President, and Mr. Speaker, and Members of the Senate and House of Representatives:

Yesterday, December 7, 1941—a date which will live in infamy (Datum 1)

the United States of America was suddenly and deliberately attacked by naval and air forces of the Empire of Japan. (Datum 2)

The United States was at peace with that Nation and, at the solicitation of Japan, was still in conversation with its Government and its Emperor looking toward the maintenance of peace in the Pacific. (Datum 3)

Indeed, one hour after Japanese air squadrons had commenced bombing in the American Island of Oahu, the Japanese Ambassador to the United States and his colleague delivered to our Secretary of State a formal reply to a recent American message. (Datum 4)

And while this reply stated that it seemed useless to continue the existing diplomatic negotiations, it contained no threat or hint of war or of armed attack. (Datum 5)

It will be recorded that the distance of Hawaii from Japan makes it obvious that the attack was deliberately planned many days or even weeks ago. (Datum 6)

During the intervening time the Japanese Government has deliberately sought to deceive the United States by false statements and expressions of hope for continued peace. (Datum 7)

The attack yesterday on the Hawaiian Islands has caused severe damage to American naval and military forces. (Datum 8)

I regret to tell you that very many American lives have been lost. (Datum 9)

In addition American ships have been reported torpedoed on the high seas between San Francisco and Honolulu. (Datum 10)

Yesterday the Japanese Government also launched an attack against Malaya. (Datum 11)

Last night Japanese forces attacked Hong Kong. (Datum 12)

Last night Japanese forces attacked Guam.

Last night Japanese forces attacked the Philippine Islands.

Last night the Japanese attacked Wake Island. And this morning the Japanese attacked Midway Island.

Japan has, therefore, undertaken a surprise offensive extending throughout the Pacific area. (Datum 13)

The facts of yesterday and today speak for themselves. (Datum 14)

The people of the United States have already formed their opinions and well understand the implications to the very life and safety of our Nation. (Datum 15)

As Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy I have directed that all measures be taken for our defense. (Datum 16)

But always will our whole Nation remember the character of the onslaught against us. (Datum 17)

No matter how long it may take us to overcome this premeditated invasion, the American people in their righteous might will win through to absolute victory. (Datum 18)

I believe that I interpret the will of the Congress and of the people when I assert that we will not only defend ourselves to the uttermost but will make it very certain that this form of treachery shall never again endanger us. (Datum 19)

Hostilities exist. There is no blinking at the fact that our people, our territory, and our interests are in grave danger. (Datum 20)

With confidence in our armed forces—with the unbounding determination of our people—we will gain the inevitable triumph, so help us God. (Datum 21)

I ask that the Congress declare that since the unprovoked and dastardly attack by Japan on Sunday, December 7, 1941, a state of war has existed between the United States and the Japanese Empire. (Datum 22)
